THE CRUCIFIX OF DRINK
Crusade Against It Has Begun Already.

REFORM FOR HONOLULU
Miss A. L. Murcutt, the Australian Missionary, Spoke Last Night.

The reform crusade which is to be waged against vice in Honolulu began last night with a sermon at the new Kaumakapili Church by Miss A. L. Murcutt, one of the around-the-world missionaries who arrived on the Coptic Friday night. Miss Murcutt is an enthusiast in her work, and her address last night, though impromptu and delivered before she had had time to recover from the fatigue of travel, showed her to be an able and magnetic speaker.

Miss Jessie Ackerman, who accompanies Miss Murcutt, will appear also in a series of lectures, and the two ladies hope to start an enthusiastic reform movement during the few weeks they will remain on the islands. Both have travelled extensively, each having been around the world several times, and they will continue to Yokohama from this place. Miss Ackerman is also engaged in gathering material for literary work.

When interviewed yesterday afternoon by an Advertiser representative, the two missionaries stated that they had as yet not formed any definite plans but they intend going about among the natives and the Chinese and Japanese of the islands for individual observation, as well as to deliver lectures. The series of addresses which they intend to deliver will be on helpful topics, and particularly in reference to the evils of drink. Miss Murcutt, who has recently returned from Europe, brings from the famous village of Oberammergau, Germany, a splendid series of stereoscopic views of the great Passion Play, which is acted by hundreds of villagers there once every ten years, lasting several months, and attracting visitors from all parts of the world. These views, which are large and clear, will be exhibited in illustration of a lecture by Miss Murcutt, who will wear the beautiful costume of white silk, with the blue mantle and jeweled diadem which completes the attire of the village singers in the celebrated drama.

The two ladies are now the guests of Mrs. Dr. Whitney, on Punahou street, and they express themselves much delighted
